The Bible. Who composed the following description of the Bible was never known." It was found in Westminster Abbey, nameless and dateless.

A nation would be traly happy if it were governed by no other laws than those of the blrased book.

It is so complete a system that nothing can be added to it. It contains everything needful to be known

It gives instruction to a senate, authority and direction to a magistrate. It contains a witness, requires an imperial verdict of a jury, and furnishes the judge with his sentence. It sets the husband as a lord of the house hold and the wife as a mistress of the table; tells him how to rule, and her how to manage, It prescribes and limits the sway of the sovereign, the ruler, and authority of the master, commands the subjects to honor, and the ser vanis to obey, and promises the bless og and protection of the Almighty to all that work by its rules. It promises food and raiment; and limits the use of both. It points out a faithful and eternal guardian to the departing husband and father, tells him with whom to leave his fatherless children, and whom his widow is to trust, and promises a father to the former and a husband to the and entails the right of the first born, and also shows how the young branches shall be left. It defends the right of all, and reveals ven geance to every defaulter, overreacher and tresknow bis will; it appoints a dowry for his wife;

It teaches a man to set his house in order and

It is the first book, and the oldest book in the world. It contains the choicest matter, gives the best instruction, affords the greatest pleasure and

It contains the best laws and most profound mysteries that were ever penned; it brings the best comfor's to the enquiring and disconsolate. It exhibits life and immortality from everlasting, and shows the only way of glory.

It is a brief recital of all that is to come. It settles all matters in debate, resolve all doubt, and eases the mind and conscience of al.

satisfaction that was ever enjoyed, scruples.

It reveals the only living and true God; and weakness, bring serious bodily trouble if trifled shows the way to Him, and sets aside all other gods, and describes the vanity of them who trust in such; in short, it is a book of law to show right and wrong; a book of wisdom that con-demns all folly and makes the foolish wise; a book of truth, that detects all lies and confronts all errors; a book of life, that shows the way from ever/asting death. It contains the most ancient antiquities, strange events, wonderful occurrences, heroic deeds, and unparalleled wars.

It describes the celestial, terrestrial and infernal worlds, and the origin of the angel myriads, human tribes and devilish legions.

New Light on Waterloo. Wellington and Waterloo appear in a fresh aspect in the following hitherto unpublished letter. The writer, who was an officer at Wellington's headquarters during the battle, writes, under date of Brussels, June 19, 1815. "I cannot help writing two lines to congratulate and condole with you on the victory which England has purchased for Europe-at the expense of more than half her army. I must not attempt to give you any account of the battle. of which the G. zette will, I dare say, give us the first distinct information. I understand, duke has before done into the shade. "His personal exertions were, it seems, incredible, and certainly secured the success of the day, of which, at one time, everybidy ex cept himself despaired. One of his side told me this morning that he took his position on a ridge from which he declared that he would never move but in triumph. When Bonaparte headed so overwhelming charge, the duke threw bimself into the opposing square, by which it was successfully resisted. I mention these particulars because they are precisely what his dispatches will not mention, and be however, that it throws everything which the cause I have them from an eye witness. "Everybody was kil'ed or wounded about him; but he is happily unburt. One is afraid to it quire after an acqueintance, the carnage has been so inexpressibly horrible. No words can do anything like justice to the valor of our people, who were literally almost smothered by the superior numbers of the French, who were themselves achaines beyond all former exam-ples. Of this you will judge when I tell you that one of the prisoners had just now, opposite to his house, provoked a soldier to beyonet him by his cries of 'Vive l'Empereur!' As well as can be judged the French are supposed to have lost one hundred and eighty pieces of cannon. The day was at one time supposed to be completely lost, and the French so thoroughly expected to make their appearance I thought it prudent to dispatch a part of the department, with papers and some of our baggage, toward Antwerp, and have this morning sent after them to return."
